

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a novel improved protein mutant which produces low allergenic response in humans compared to the parent of that mutant. Specifically, the present invention comprises neutralizing or reducing the ability of T-
5 cells to recognize epitopes and thus prevent sensitization of an individual to the protein.

09060872.041598